Domaine André Clouet is located in the village of Bouzy in the Montagne de Reims subregion of Champagne. Their family-owned vineyards cover 8 hectares in the sloped vineyards of Grand Cru Bouzy and Ambonnay.

The wines are crafted using the traditional methods of Champagne production, with respect to the terroir and sense of place. They are cellared under the family's 17th century village house which was originally built by André's ancestor who, as an interesting note of history, acted as printer to Louis XV's royal court at Versailles.

“Un Jour de 1911” is a non-vintage blend comprised of wines from 3 vintages: 50% from 2004, 25% from 2007, and 25% from 2008, all of which are made from Grand Cru Bouzy estate-grown fruit. 50% of the wine was fermented in stainless steel tanks, the other 50% was fermented in Sauternes barrels. The name “1911” is given for the number of bottles produced annually of this elegant blend of the region's best vintages.
